

March 3, 2009 - "I understand that you will be going off the air shortly (with your radio show, the Ordinary Millionaire). I would appreciate receiving information as you redefine access to your web site. It sounds like you may provide a subscription section for your non clients."

Answer - We have decided to limit future access to some information on our website through a secured "Client Eyes Only" section of the site. Information such as investment advisories or breaking news investment guidance will be accessible only to investor clients for whom we provide management services. Ours is a fee based business, based upon total assets being managed. It would not be fair to those we service, to offer this service to others without having a similar relationship.

In addition, managing client money is a very personal process, based on the interests, needs, and goals of each client. Actually, managing their investment portfolio is only the final stage of the management process. The whole process is designed to plan for future cash flows. These flows are contingent upon what each person plans for his or her future.

What I would suggest is that you get in touch with us, and we meet to discuss an ongoing relationship. We can be reached via email at Iris@HighDesertAdvisors.net or Richard@HighDesertAdvisors.net or by phone at 505-797-1901. Thank you for your interest and we look forward to serving your investment needs.
